Certified Training Associate
Candice Norcott, PhD

Candice Norcott, PhD, is a licensed clinical psychologist and an assistant professor at the University of Chicago in the Department of Psychiatry and Behavioral Neuroscience. Her work encompasses providing trauma-informed, reproductive health services to adolescent girls and young women. She also is the Director of Graduate Medical Education Wellbeing for the University of Chicago, where she brings a trauma-informed approach to resident physician wellbeing. Dr. Norcott completed her graduate education at the University of Connecticut and her pre- and postdoctoral training at Yale University.

Dr. Norcott speaks internationally on issues related to trauma, gender, and race. She was featured on both seasons of the Lifetime docuseries “Surviving R. Kelly” and was a guest on Jada Pinkett Smith’s Red Table Talk as an expert discussing the impact of sexual abuse on girls and young women. She also offers training on the intersections of race, gender, and trauma.

Dr. Norcott is a certified training associate for Dr. Stephanie Covington’s trauma-informed and gender-responsive curricula. She has trained for Dr. Covington both in the U.S. and abroad, including treatment centers for adolescent substance misuse, mental health programs, and substance-use disorder programs in criminal justice settings. She has facilitated Voices groups in Connecticut detention and treatment facilities and has participated in the development of the A Women’s Way through The Twelve Steps training DVD. She also provides consultation on and monitors program fidelity for other Covington curricula.
